The Cambrian News

From The Editor:

This month's newsletter has by chance focussed heavily on Cardiff and its environs. The February issue of the Celtic Connection features a fascinating interview with the Lord Mayor of Cardiff conducted by Catholine Butler entitled CARDIFF: Europe's Fastest Growing City. This article is particularly timely since it contains greetings on St. David's Day from the Lord Mayor to Welsh people abroad. My thanks go to Catholine for permitting me to abstract them. The article also discusses the contributions made by the third Marquis of Bute to the restoration of both Cardiff Castle and Castell Coch. The latter is the subject of the front cover independently provided by Gordon. The Lord Mayor also mentions The Museum of Welsh Life, which is situated four miles from the city centre. This Museum not only preserves the past but also embraces the future through its new initiative to hold the first Web Eisteddfod, thereby offering competitions open to the Welsh all over the world. Information on this E-steddfod did not reach us in time to meet the February 15th deadline for submissions, but we can look forward to next year! In the interim, maybe we could have our own competition and chair our own 'bard'? The shorter verses, such as the Limerick, the Epitaph, and maybe the Englyn on 'The Mobile Phone' pose amusing challenges. Let's hear from you!

David Llewelyn Williams

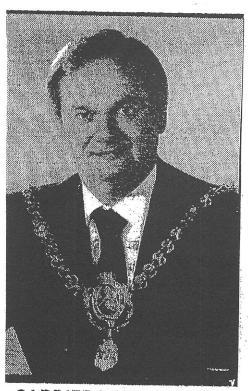

Please note that the Cambrian Hall is closed on Friday, March 1st, in order to prepare for the celebration on March 2nd.

Castell Coch (the Red Castle) rises majestically from the beech wood overlooking the Taff Valley. Built with the wealth created by coal in the Industrial Revolution by the third Marquess of Bute, it is surely the ultimate status symbol. The castle, which can be seen from the streets of Cardiff, is a Victorian fantasy of a 13th century Medieval military construction. Its interior decoration even surpasses the romanticism of its fairytale turrets. Themed rooms are adorned with painted birds and animals, the lives of the Saints and stories of mythology. Lady Bute's room has a magnificent domed and mirrored ceiling. It was started in 1875 but not finished until 1891, ten years after the death of the architect Williams Burges who also designed Cardiff Castle for the Earl of Bute.

CARDIFF LORD MAYOR Russell Goodway

On the occasion of St. David's Day, Councillor Russell Goodway. the Right Honourable Lord Mayor of Cardiff sends the following greeting to Welsh people abroad: "On behalf of the people of Cardiff, I would like to extend to readers of The Celtic Connection my very best wishes on St. David's Day 2002.

"The City of Cardiff plays an important role in the life of the Nation and it is important that this is reflected in the celebrations to mark the Patron Saint of Wales.

"Developments like the state-of the-art Millennium Stadium and the regeneration of Cardiff Bay represent powerful symbols of Welsh confidence in the New Millenium. The city is also poised to make a powerful bid to become European Capital of Culture 2008.

"As the Welsh community throughout North America celebrate their Welsh heritage on St. David's Day, pride and confidence can be taken from Cardiff's emergence as Europe's fastest growing capital city.'

Ar ran pobl Caerdydd, hoffwn estyn fy nymuntadau gorau t ddarllenwyr The Celtic Connection ar Ddydd Gwyl Dewi 2002.

Mae Dinas Caerdydd yn chwarae rhan bwysig ym mywyd y Genedl ac mae'n bwysig adlewyrchu hynny wrth ddathlu gwyl Nawdd Sant Cymru.

Mae datblygiadau fel Stadiwm ragorol y Milentium ac adfywiad Bae Caerdydd yn symbolau pwerus o lyder Cymru yn y Mileniwm Newydd. Mae'r Ddinas ar fin gwneud cais cryf hefyd i fod un Brifddinas Diwylliant Ewrop yn 2008.

Wrth i'r gymuned Gymreig ar draws Gogledd America ddathlu ei threftadaeth Gymreig ar Ddydd Gw yl Dewi, gall ymfalchio a dwyn hyder o'r ffaith mai Caerdydd yw'r brifddinas sy'n tyfu gyflymaf yn Ewrop. Y Cynghorydd Russell Goodway.

Tilting at Windmills

An unspoilt area of Breconshire could soon host part of 'one of the largest wind power stations in the world. Following the recent controversial decision by UK Energy Minister Brian Wilson to give consent for the 39-turbine Cefn Croes wind power station, situated at the gateway to Powys, a new proposal, described as 'a further and potentially far more devastating blow to the landscape of the Cambrian Mountains' is being discussed. The Camddwr Trust, a previously unheard of organisation with unknown credentials, is consulting interested parties on a proposal to build a gigantic windfarm of 165 wind turbines of up to 120m (almost 400ft) overall height in an area extending to 13 x 10km between Strata Florida and Llyn Brianne. The provisional layout shows about one third of the turbine positions are located in Breconshire with the remainder in Ceredigion. The Breconshire allocation of wind turbines would crown the ridgelines of the Tregaron to Abergwesyn mountain road, and be visible from as far as the Epynt mountain range. Earlier this year, Ceredigion councillors had failed to back their planning officer's recommendation to object to the Cefn Croes proposal, despite objections from neighbouring authority Powys County Council.

Merfyn Williams, Director of the Campaign for the Protection of Rural Wales, greeted the news with horror and anger. "This audacious proposal adds insult to the injury felt following the perverse decision to approve the Cefn Croes power station. These even larger turbines would turn the landscape, acknowledged as of National Park quality, into a succession of engineering machines of unprecedented scale in what would be one of the largest wind power stations in the world. The turbines would be nearly ten times the height of the trees in the conifer plantations, and would dominate the horizon behind the Claerwen reservoir. Those proposed for the open mountains would belittle the grandeur of the landscape above the Doethie and Camddwr valleys even to the extent of overpowering the remote Ty'n-y-Cornel Youth Hostel and the dramatic setting of Llyn Brianne.this is a declaration of war on the Cambrian Mountains landscape and on the integrity of the heart of rural Wales."

VANCOUVER WELSH MEN'S CHOIR

After a quiet period in January which gave us the opportunity to introduce some new music into our repertoire, February will once again see us back on the risers. We start with a joint performance with the Vancouver Honour Children's Choir and the UBC Jazz Band at Magee High School in Vancouver on February 14 in the opening concert for the annual two-day convention of the British Columbia Music Educators Association. This will be followed by the opportunity to sing a full concert at an afternoon benefit performance on Sunday February 24 in Mount Olive Lutheran Church in South Surrey. Less than a week later we will be joining the Delta Police Pipe Band for a joint concert in the massive First Avenue Christian Alliance Church in Chilliwack. Despite the size of the latter church the current rate of ticket sales indicates that this concert will be essentially sold out by the performance time on Saturday March 2. We performed with the Delta Police Pipe Band last June in Tsawwassen and this repeat concert in Chilliwack is clear evidence of how well the two groups appeal to local audiences.

Dear Friend

It is my great pleasure to invite you to participate in the fourth Museum of Welsh Life Eisteddfod. This year, in co-operation with the National Library of Wales, the Museum will hold its first Web Eisteddfod, which we hope to be a very exciting chapter in the event's development. Through the World Wide Web, we can reach a wider audience than before and offer competitions for the Welsh all over the world.

Attached to this E-mail is a list of wide-ranging competitions, in English and in Welsh, which should include something of interest for everybody. I hope very much, therefore, that you will take the opportunity to compete.

The winners will be announced on the Museum's website (see below) on March 1st, 2002. In conjunction with the Eisteddfod, an on-line exhibition will be launched on that day, tracing the history of the National Eisteddfod and containing contributions from Professor Hywel Teifi Edwards.

So join us, from all corners of the world, in celebrating St David's Day by sending your compositions to the E-mail address below.

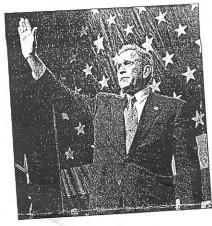

For further information, please E-mail me at e-steddfod@nmgw.ac.uk

Many thanks for your support.

life, from television and sports celebrities, business and tourism sectors, health professionals and religious leaders. Wrexham's bid entitled "Honouring Achievement, Achieving Balance in Wales" was delivered to the Secretary of State for Wales in late October. sandy Mewies, the Mayor of Wrexham, said" Wrexham has attained so much over the past ten years. There has been an economic, cultural and educational transformation, which is unsurpassed in Wales. We have gone from an industrial market town to a thriving modern 'city in waiting'.

The President of Plaid Cymru, Ieuan Wyn Jones has also endorsed Wrexham's bid: "North wales is in need of a major city. Wrexham is now a thriving industrial and economic centre and eminently suited to achieving city status. It will be of great economic advantage to the area."

(from the Wrexham Leader)

OCTOBER
"Mr. Bush said, 'So what state is Wales in?' I said, 'Erm, it's a separate country next to England, and he went, 'Oh, okay.' I didn't know what to say." (Welsh
songstress Charlotte Church,
Oct. 30)

Pleasant, that it will no longer issue him a licence after his doctor objected. Mr. Austin, one of Britain's oldest drivers, has been driving since 1917. He says his new mode of transport, which he does not need a licence to drive, is severely lacking in va va voom! "It does eight miles an hour top speed and half of that is walking pace! But before I bought it I got them to make sure it could get up Mount Pleasant Hill and Primrose Hill "he said.

After suffering stomach pains, Mr. Austin went to see one of his surgery's doctors. "I just wanted a laxative. I was furious the doctor didn't even examine me. He'd never met me before but he said a man of my age should not be driving." He wrote to tell the DVLA. Mr. Austin reckons he's as active as a much younger man and happy to climb ladders or work with heavy equipment. "I have perfect eyesight. I can see the steel towers on the top of Kilvey Hill from my house."

During a long career as a cinema sound engineer he drove the length and breadth of Britain in everything from his namesake Austin 7 to a trio of Bentleys he owned in the 1950's. Throughout this time, Swansea's reputation for car crime has left him unscathed without so much as a car scratched or broken into. He says he has never suffered a dent or a parking fine.
